

Dear Titan Community,

Cal State Fullerton condemns violence and all acts against humanity. The atrocious war and escalating violence in the Middle East are horrific and difficult events to witness.

As an inclusive community, it is important to recognize and communicate our empathy for how these events are experienced by our diverse Titan community. We are bound together by our shared Guiding Principles for Social Justice and commitment to a safe and inclusive learning and working environment.

We recognize the complexity and emotional weight this conflict has caused and encourage a recommitment to engage in respectful, open, and constructive dialogue. By embracing conversations and supporting one another in our quest for knowledge and understanding, we can collectively contribute to peace, justice, and a world free from violence.

Members of our Titan community are hurting. Please check in on each other and offer your care and support. As a caring community, we want to make sure that you know that we have resources and services that you can use to assist you in coping with this difficult and heartbreaking situation.

As we move forward, let us be guided by our shared humanity, compassion, and a deep commitment to social justice. Please be aware of the resources listed here for support.

In solidarity,

Sylvia A. Alva, Ph.D.

President

University Counseling Resources:

Counseling and Psychological Services (Students Only)

Employees Assistance Program (Employees Only)

Additional University Resources:

Diversity, Inclusion, and Equity Programs

Discrimination, Harassment, and Retaliation

Diversity, Initiatives & Resource Centers